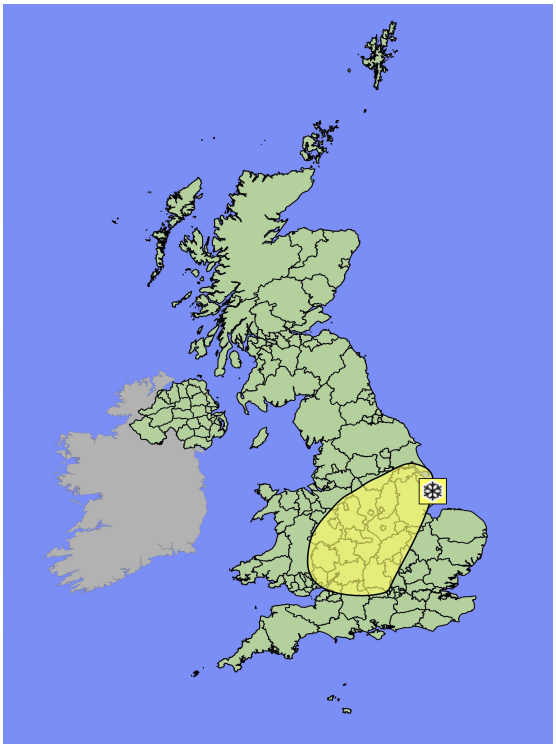
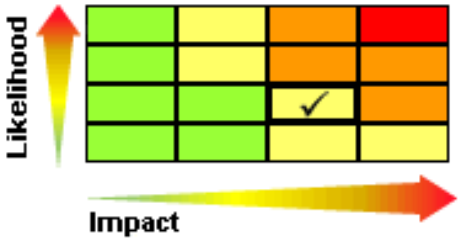
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
An area of low pressure will cross southern Britain with rain turning to snow on its northern and western flank. There is still some uncertainty concerning the track so please keep up to date with all warnings and forecasts.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Snow

Valid from 00:05 on Fri, 16th Dec 2011 until 10:00 on Fri, 16th Dec 2011

Outbreaks of heavy rain will turn readily to snow during the early hours of Friday. The snow is likely to accumulate over time with a risk of up to 10 cm over higher ground. At low levels sleet is more likely but even here some lying snow cannot be ruled out.

The public should be aware that this could lead to travel disruption on Friday morning.
